Sandra Rutherford of Huntington is Miss Marshall of 1964! A member of Alpha Xi Delta social sorority, she was elected by a total of 479 votes in Monday's Homecoming queen election.

Chosen by a total of 66 votes, the junior class queen is Karen Agee of Huntington; Nancy Glaser of Hawthorne, N. J., was elected to the throne of the sophomore class queen, and Sherry Baker of Huntington will reign as the attendant for the freshman class.

The sophomore class queen received a total of 112 votes, and the freshman winner polled a total of 174 votes.

Judy Chikos, a freshman from Logan, will serve in the court of the new Miss Marshall, representing the Logan Branch of the University. She is a 1964 graduate of Logan High School.

The Logan queen is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul M. Chikos, and she is majoring in French and secondary education at the extension school.

The Williamson Branch of the University will be represented in this coming weekend's festivities by Jacqueline West, a Williamson sophomore.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Perry West of Williamson, she is majoring in physical education and English in the Teacher's College.

Succeeds Peggy Tucker

Miss Marshall of 1964 succeeds Peggy Tucker of Bluefield, who reigned over last year's Homecoming celebration on the Big Green throne. Miss Marshall of 1963 was also a member of Alpha Xi Delta social sorority.

The two branch school queens—from Logan and Williamson—were both selected in separate elections several days ago in their respective areas.

They will ride on the main float in Saturday's big parade down Fourth Avenue. This will be the queen's float, and it will be carrying Miss Marshall and the three class queens. The woman who is elected Miss Marshall not only serves as the Homecoming queen, but she is also the representative of the senior class.

Race Was Close

The final tally of the election Monday revealed that several of the class races were crucially close. In some cases the only difference between the first and second positions ranged from two to six votes.

Mike Mittelman, Miami, Fla., junior, and the chairman of the Student Government's Election Committee, refused to allow the number of votes the losing candidates accumulated to be released to the press.

Mittelman said that if any of the defeated candidates cared to know how many votes they polled they could contact him. Rose Marie Frecka, Iron ton junior and queens' chairman, said Monday night that it was a possibility that some of the defeated candidates might contest the election, considering its closeness at times.

Turnout Was Heavy

The turnout for Monday's election was moderately heavy. The day was a typical one for fall—

KAREN AGEE
. . . Junior Queen

it was cool and windy and cloudy, with only scattered traces of sunshine.

But the scene surrounding the polling place, the Student Union, was vivid. The bright sweaters of campaigning coeds blended in like a painting with the nearby many-hued trees on campus.

The polls opened Monday at 8 a.m. and closed at 5 p.m. As a result of the nearness of the national and state elections, voting machines could not be acquired for use in the Homecoming queen election. Instead, simple balloting boxes were used, and the ballots had to be hand-counted.

The ballots for each of the four classes were of different colored paper, which helped to eliminate the confusion.

Coronation At Game

Miss Marshall and the members of her court will be crowned at the halftime ceremonies of the Homecoming football game Saturday against the University of Louisville.

Last year's class queens were Peggy Shepard, Huntington, junior; Kay Collins, Huntington sophomore, and Patty Johnson, Huntington, freshman.

In Monday's election, any full-time student could have voted for his choice of Miss Marshall. In addition, juniors, sophomores and freshmen voted for their respective class queens.

Hulett Smith Vows Support For Marshall

By DAN FIELDS

"Don't be confused by false issues. The real issues will be roads, education, economic and recreation development in that order," said Hulett C. Smith, Democratic gubernatorial candidate.

Mr. Smith was interviewed Friday by The Parthenon and WMUL in its public service political broadcasts. The panel consisted of Joan Fleckenstein, Huntington junior and president of the junior class, who represented the student government; Dave Peyton, Huntington junior who represented The Parthenon; Bruce Forrest, Monaca, Pa., senior and news director of WMUL, and Dr. Paul D. Stewart, professor of political science, representing the faculty.

"As you well know, Marshall achieved university status under the past administration. If elected, I will try my best to further Marshall in every way possible. I have some plans which include new testing methods, educational TV, and development of modern teaching techniques.

"Since most of the budget goes to education, we will have a lot to work with," Mr. Smith said, in reply to the question of what could he do for Marshall.

Answering the question of whether Marshall should be under a board of governors as is West Virginia University, he said that he has had a committee working on this problem, and will try his best to have Marshall treated on an equal basis with WVU.

"Marshall is in the center of a potentially great industrial complex. We should try to develop its research facilities to meet the industrial demand," he replied to the question of Marshall getting the ARA research grant.

In reference to the Civil Rights issue, Mr. Smith said that he would continue the example set by the Barron administration.

"The future of West Virginia lies in its ability to educate and keep its youth in the state. Marshall is fulfilling obligation to the utmost," Mr. Smith stated.

Letters To The Editor

Dear Editor:

When I read in last Wednesday's issue of The Parthenon the report of the Student Senate meeting, I was disgusted and shocked.

The idea that the Senate, the governing body of our University, had nothing better to debate for three hours than whether certain organizations on campus could receive their homecoming tickets in a reserved block rather than getting them as others do, on the "first-come-first-served" basis, struck me as pathetic. To think that such a lengthy debate could be based on the threat by certain individuals that if they did not get their way they would "take their toys and go home!"

A better way to describe my feelings on this matter would be summed up in the word "disappointment." I always thought that Homecoming was an event in which the whole student body could participate equally. Perhaps this is too idealistic — to assume that no select groups of students will be given "special attention," even in this school sponsored event.

I imagine many other ways of selling tickets have been tried in the past and the method now being used has proven most satisfactory, but it seems rather foolish that young men and women in college have to be appeased on such an elementary issue. Of course, everyone wants to be with his friends at Homecoming, but why should some find it easier than others to get tickets with their friends?

Does it not seem strange that one of the people's elected representatives implies in the government meeting that this minority is responsible for the life that exists in this body, therefore this minority should get "special attention," because if it doesn't, it will just pull out and make sure that the rest of the body suffers! What kind of democracy is this?

Dear Editor:

There has been much discussion lately about our ram and whether or not it should be on the field during our football games. The problem and objection seems to be that the ram is unfairly implying that it is our team and that our team is to be known as the Rams. This is not true in either case.

First, we must assume that most of us who are college students are at least somewhat mature. With this maturity should come the ability to digest that which we read and hear and to be able to reason out what are the true facts.

Secondly, we should realize that the ram symbolizes the "Rally Around Marshall" organization, which donated him . . . and not our team. The ram is really the mascot of R.A.M., as any animal, an elephant, a goldfish, or an ant, for example, could be the symbol of some other group supporting Marshall and its football team. A group of students should have enough interest to start one instead of knocking the one group that has done more for Marshall and its rise in spirit than any other group in several years.

I am in favor of deciding finally on one name for Marshall and its teams. But, whether it should be the "Rams," the "Elephants," or the "Ants" is up to the students and alumni of Marshall.

Forget your grievances and help R.A.M., not hinder it! The ram will NOT go on the field until a mascot and name have been chosen; but I think that we should remember that at the present it truly represents the Rally Around Marshall organization, not Marshall or its teams.

The Howard Jennings Orchestra will play for the alumni dance at the Hotel Prichard, which is also expected to draw a capacity crowd. The time for both dances is 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. Tickets are $5 per couple.

Athletic Director Neal "Whitey" Wilson said that tickets for the game also are selling at a fast rate. General admission tickets are $1.50, and reserved seats are $5. 'Roughest Yet'--Mahone

Anderson, Sansosti Hurt
As Big Green Wins, 27-6

By RICK EDWARDS
Sports Co-Editor

"That was the roughest game I've ever player in," remarked a tired Jack Mahone, Marshall's outstanding tailback, after the Kentucky State game which was won by the Big Green 27-6.

The estimated 7,500 fans at Fairfield Stadium, including 15 high school bands that were on hand for "Band Night," saw more red penalty flags being thrown than they did footballs. The officials marched-off a total of 217 yards against both teams — 137 against Kentucky and 80 against MU.

"Those penalties had to be called. If they weren't the game would have turned into a brawl," said Mahone.

The victory for Marshall coach Charlie Snyder was costly. Fred Anderson, MU's 239-pound junior tackle, was injured late in the first half and had to be taken to the hospital.

"We don't know how bad Anderson is hurt," Snyder said. "We do know that it will be some time before he will be able to play. The hospital lists his condition as satisfactory. There are to be more X-rays taken. The first X-rays showed no broken bones in his neck or back."

Alex Sansosti, MU's number 2 quarterback who was playing defensive safety in place of the injured Paul Turman, suffered a "twisted knee" and will be out of action for at least one game and possibly two.

Jack Mahone was the offensive star for the Big Green against the Thorobreds. He scored three touchdowns and gained a total of 131 yards in 19 carries.

Jim Brown scored MU's first TD on a fullback draw that covered 20 yards, Bill Winter added the extra point.

Kentucky State came back to score on a pass from quarterback Carl Wade to end Eddie Hardwick. The play covered 25 yards. The try for the extra point was no good and with 10:25 left in the first half MU led 7-6.

Larry Coyer intercepted a Wade pass on his own 48 and returned it to Kentucky's 20. At that point a personal four against the Thorobreds put MU on the 10. Two plays later Mahone went in for six points and Winter kicked the extra point.

On the ensuing kick-off MU tried an on-side kick, but Kentucky's Jess Jenkins, a 225-pound tackle, picked up the ball and started up field. Anderson tackled Jenkins and was injured.

Afterwards, Sansosti intercepted an aerial and was tackled hard by Kentucky's Robert Kemp. Sansosti was injured and had to be helped from the field.

After Howie Lee Miller completed a 36-yard pass to Jim Cure, Marshall's All-Mid American Conference end, to the Thorobred's 35, Mahone galloped the rest of the way in just one play. Winter kicked the extra point and MU led 21-6 at the end of the first half.

Marshall took the kick off to start the second half with a beautiful run-back of the kick by MU's Coyer to the Kentucky 35.

Marshall scored in six plays with Mahone getting his third TD on a 21yard jouant. The try for the extra point was wide.

"We needed that victory to get over the 500 percentage mark on the season, but those injuries will hurt us in our next game," Snyder said.

of Morehead was second in 15:44, while Marshall's Gary Prater edged Dave Dennis of Morehead for third by one second with a time of 16:00. Again depth was the Big Green's problem, as Morehead's Wayne Garre, Richard Norman, and Ed Newcombe placed fifth, sixth, and seventh respectively, while Marshall's Rodger Dunfee finished eighth, Larry Butcher ninth, and David Hansen tenth.

Marshall will face Morehead here Saturday in Ritter Park at 10 a.m.

Pre-Med Coeds Meet At MIT

June Patton, Huntington senior, and Debbie Adkins, Barboursville sophomore, will leave tomorrow for Boston to represent Marshall at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology Symposium on "American Women in Science and Engineering." It is sponsored by the Association of Woman Students at MIT and will continue through Sunday.

The two girls, who are pre-med students, were appointed to attend the symposium by Dr. Frank Bartlett, dean of the College of Arts and Sciences. One hundred colleges are to be represented.

The purpose of the symposium is to examine the position of professional women in society.

During the symposium, the coeds will participate in various activities including lectures, informal student discussion groups and panel discussions.

Both students are in the College of Arts and Sciences, members of Alpha Xi Delta sorority, Alpha Lambda Delta, freshman women's honorary, and the student-affiliated American Chemical Society.

Miss Adkins is majoring in zoology and is a member of the German Club. Miss Patton is majoring in chemistry. She is a member of Chi Beta Phi, science honorary, and Alpha Epsilon Delta, pre-med honorary, of which she is corresponding secretary.

176 Freshmen On Honor List

More freshmen were admitted to Marshall with honors this semester than in the previous year.

In 1963-64 there was a total of 1,381 freshmen compared to the 1,716 students admitted in 1964-65. Last year, the number of freshmen with honors was 80. This compares with 176 for this year.

Teachers College leads the list for both years with 47 out of 569 students in 1963-64 and 90 out of 699 in 1964-65. The College of Arts and Sciences is next, having 22 from the 647 freshmen last year and 72 out of 834 this year. The College of Applied Science had 11 out of 165 last year, and 14 from 183 this year.

Circle K Meets Today In Chapel

The Circle K Club meets at 4:30 p.m. today in the conference room of the Student Christian Center. The organization will discuss their charter and ideas for social functions and activities for the rest of the year.

Circle K International is re-establishing its position on campus under the sponsorship of the Huntington Kiwanis Club. The club is open to all men who have a 2.0 average or better.

Two of their main objectives are to give primacy to the human and spiritual rather to the material values of life and to encourage the daily living of the Golden Rule in all human relationships.

Additional information can be obtained from Robert Alexander, director of placement, or James R. White, past Lt. Governor, in Room 307 of the new men's dorm.

Politics Make Ram 'Orphan'; Senate Fears Name Partiality

By DAVID PEYTON

Sam the ram is an orphan.

While campus solons discussed the controversial "suggested" mascot for MU last week, Sam the ram, donated to the student body by Leonard Samworth, chief "Ram" in the Rally Around Marshall movement, seemed to be ignored.

The controversy over Sam started in the Student Cabinet meeting last week. In that meeting, David Pancake, Huntington junior and commissioner of publicity and public relations, submitted a recommendation to the cabinet that Sam be prevented from attending any further athletic contests until the question of a nickname for Marshall is resolved.

The suggestion in the form of a resolution was then presented to the senate last Wednesday. The resolution, submitted by Sen. Danie Stewart, Huntington junior, called for the ram to be kept from athletic contests.

Stewart, in his arguments for the passage of the resolution, said that the presence of the ram at football games seemed to show partiality toward the nickname "Rams" for Marshall.

But, Andrew MacQueen, Charleston senior senator, said that if the ram were withdrawn from the games, it would seem that the Student Senate would be opposed to the ram as MU's symbol. The issue was left hanging when the senate voted to table the "ban the ram" legislation.

This meant the ram was cordially invited to attend the Marshall-Kentucky State clash last Saturday at Fairfield Stadium. But Sam did not make an appearance.

Monday, Leonard Samworth was asked about the ram. He said that the ram was no longer his concern and that he had presented the fuzzy beast to the student body.

But when Dick Cottrill, Huntington senior and president of the student body, was contacted, he said that the student government could not claim the ram for MU. "I think that if we claimed him, this would be showing partiality to the nickname of "Rams," Cottrill said.

And so, Sam the ram, who was never asked his opinion about the matter, came up without a master Monday. Cottrill said that he felt that the Rally Around Marshall group or some group of interested students on campus should be the keepers of the ram. But, as of Monday, no keeper had been found.

What do you do with an orphaned ram named Sam?
"Ram"-choos anyone!

Home Economics Class Participating In Adult Education Program At Dorm

The home economics adult education class, under the direction of Reva Belle Neely, associate professor of home economics, is participating in an adult education program with the freshman students in the New Residence Hall. The purpose of these classes is to give the student teachers in home economics educational experience in working with organized groups.

According to surveys and questionnaires obtained by the student teachers, the freshmen students are interested in two classes. The first is to deal with personal laundry and use of equipment to be taught tomorrow in the basement lounge of the dormitory and the second class on social graces will meet Oct. 29 at the same location. Classes will begin at 7:30 and last until 8:15.

The following student teachers are conducting this program: Phillis Sowards, Marilyn Talbot, Mrs. Brenda McBraver, Roma Gay, Mrs. Betty Davis and Donna Sturgeon.

Only those freshmen residence students who have previously enrolled in these classes are eligible to attend.
